Areas of Practice

Criminal & Disciplinary, Damages & Reparation, Employment & Discrimination, Land & Property and Public Law & Equality

Profile

Michael called to the bar in July 2017 after training as a solicitor at a large commercial firm. There, he gained experience in a wide range of litigation in both the Court of Session and Sheriff Court, including commercial, insolvency, and construction litigation.

Since his admission as an advocate, Michael has established a busy civil practice. He is principally instructed in commercial, employment, and personal injury matters, and has a particular interest in property and construction law, as well as professional liability.

Michael is regularly instructed in the Court of Session, the Sheriff Court and the Employment Tribunal and has recently been involved in a long running international arbitration dispute.

Having a keen interest in legal education, Michael often judges moots and gives training sessions on advocacy to students with an interest in this area.
